“The Camp Negotiation Institute Now Offers Advanced Negotiation Training Courses in Chinese”

(DUBLIN, OHIO – November 16, 2011) – The global popularity of the Camp Negotiation Institute’s advanced negotiation training courses has led to its courses being translated to Chinese.

The courses were translated to Chinese after many global organizations asked the Camp Negotiation Institute to offer negotiation training courses in Chinese so their Chinese speaking employees could receive advanced negotiation training while improving their English language skills.

Jim Camp, a world-renown negotiation coach and founder and CEO of the Camp Negotiation Institute states, “Over the past 18-months we have had corporate clients with Chinese employees taking our courses. They have had amazing financial success on the Mainland and in Taiwan with our system, but there has been a surprise benefit we did not anticipate. The courses are producing great improvement in the English language skills of the Chinese employees who must use both languages in their day-to-day work. The improvement is dramatic in both the spoken and written word. They are preparing to roll out the courses to all of their Chinese employees—not just those involved in negotiations.”

Besides offering negotiation training in English and Chinese, the Camp Negotiation Institute is currently translating their negotiation training courses to Russian with plans for European Spanish, South American Spanish, Korean, Portuguese, French, and Japanese.
